Hitherto we have had theory; now we need practiced You are quite right, replied the Colonel; even my own studious little daughter tells me she has learned more concerning the history and geography of her own country since we left home, than in her five years of study at school. Take Boston, for instance, said Mr. Manning. my own native city where I attended school for many years, and yet, never knew anything of its rocks, flora, or, in fact, correct history until I left it. Last year I took my own hoy to sec the glass-works at Somerville, and there are numerous manufactorys equally attractive and instructive. These boys and girls now live in a world of which they know a very little. I am determined that my boy shall know...
